

Stanford Football
COACHING STAFF

In his first season as Stanford's head coach, Jim Harbaugh led the Cardinal to wins over top-ranked USC and defending Pacific-10 Conference co-champion California.

Jim HARBAUGH

HEAD COACH
Bradford M. Freeman
Director of Football
Stanford University

Jim Harbaugh, who was appointed the Bradford M. Freeman Director of Football on December 19, 2006, wasted little time in making a big impression in the college football circles in his first season as Stanford's head coach.

Stanford was one of the most improved teams in the Pacific-10 Conference last season under Harbaugh, whose infectious energy and enthusiasm immediately took hold of the program. The Cardinal finished with a 4-8 overall record and a 3-6 mark in conference play last season following a 2006 campaign which saw the team win just one game in 12 outings. Included in last year's win total was an epic, 24-23 upset win over USC, ranked first in the USA Today Coaches poll and second by the Associated Press at the time, and a convincing win over defending Pac-10 Conference co-champion California, breaking the Bears five-game winning streak in the Big Game.

While a pair of signature victories served notice Stanford's program was again on the rise, Harbaugh is more than ready to push the envelope a little further this season as the Cardinal continue its journey to the upper echelon of a talent-rich conference in its quest to become perennial bowl participants.

"Winning the USC and Cal games added credibility to the program with alumni, supporters, fans, university staff, friends of Stanford and maybe most importantly the students," Harbaugh said.

"We must challenge ourselves in the areas that need to be addressed to move forward—player development, recruiting, research, evaluation, team morale, promotion of the program and the off-season and spring practices."

Harbaugh came to Stanford from the University of San Diego, where he guided the Toreros to an impressive three-year overall record of 29-6 (.829), including back-to-back 11-1 seasons that netted a pair of Division I-AA Mid Major national titles in 2005 and '06.

Success is no stranger to Harbaugh. A product of nearby Palo Alto High School, he was one of the most highly-sought after recruits in the nation. He enjoyed a storied career at the University of Michigan, where he led the Wolverines to three bowl appearances and garnered Big Ten Player of the Year and first team All-America honors. As a professional, Harbaugh finished his career ranked among the NFL's top-50 in several passing categories and was named the AFC's Offensive Player of the Year in 1995. During his brief coaching career in the NFL, he helped the Oakland Raiders reach the 2003 Super Bowl as the team's quarterbacks coach.

As a collegiate player, Harbaugh led the Maize and Blue to a 21-3-1 record and three bowl appearances as a full-time starter from 1984-86. As a senior, he quarterbacked the Wolverines to a Rose Bowl appearance and earned first team All-America and Big Ten Player of the Year honors while finishing third in the Heisman Trophy balloting. As a junior, he led the Wolverines to a Fiesta Bowl victory and a No. 2 ranking in the national polls.

He finished his collegiate career completing 387-of-620 passes for 5,449 yards and 31 touchdowns. Harbaugh became the first Wolverine quarterback to throw for 300 yards in a single game, accomplishing the feat against Indiana on October 25, 1986.

NFL Draft: 1987/Chicago Bears/1st Round (26th overall pick)
Playing Experience:
College
1982-86, University of Michigan
Professional
1987-93, Chicago Bears
1994-97, Indianapolis Colts
1998, Baltimore Ravens
1999-2000, San Diego Chargers
2001, Carolina Panthers

A first round draft pick of the Chicago Bears in 1987, Harbaugh played for five teams over 15 seasons, including the Chicago Bears (1987-93), Indianapolis Colts (1994-97), Baltimore Ravens (1998), San Diego Chargers (1999-2000) and Carolina Panthers (2001). He racked up 26,288 passing yards to go along with 129 touchdown passes, completing 2,305-of-3,918 passes in 177 career games, including 140 starts. Harbaugh ranks among the NFL's all-time top-50 in career completions (#35), pass attempts (#39) and passing yards (#48).

In Chicago, Harbaugh passed for over 2,000 yards in four consecutive seasons and led the Bears to back-to-back 11-5 seasons in 1990 and '91. He passed for a career-best 3,121 yards and led Chicago to an appearance in the 1991 NFC Wild Card game. He also quarterbacked the Bears to a playoff win in 1990.

Harbaugh enjoyed some of his most productive seasons as a player with the Indianapolis Colts from 1994-97. In 1995, he led the Colts to the AFC Championship Game and earned AFC Offensive Player of the Year and NFL co-Comeback Player of the Year honors, while landing a spot in the Pro Bowl. He was also the runner up for the NFL's Most Valuable Player honors and finished as the league's top-rated passer. Harbaugh turned in another strong season in 1996, passing for 2,630 yards and leading the Colts to a second straight playoff appearance.

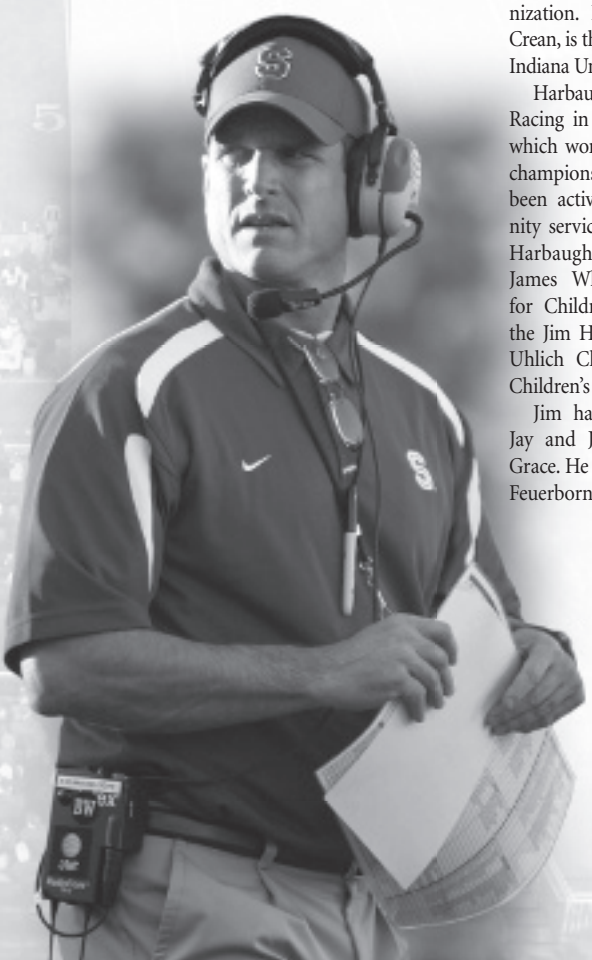

In January of 2005, he had his name placed in the Colts Ring of Honor as one of the top players in franchise history.

Harbaugh played for three different teams over his last five NFL seasons. In 1998, he started in 14 games in his lone season with the Baltimore Ravens. In 1999, he passed for 2,761 yards, the second-highest total of his career, while starting for the San Diego Chargers. He completed 60.9% of his passes with San Diego in 2000 before finishing his career with the Carolina Panthers in 2001.

Following his retirement from pro football, Harbaugh spent two seasons (2002-03) as the quarterbacks coach of the Oakland Raiders. In his first season, the Raiders posted an 11-5 regular season record and won the AFC Western Division title and advanced to Super Bowl XXXVII following playoff wins over the New York Jets and Tennessee Titans.

He laid the groundwork for his coaching career while he was still competing as a player in the NFL, serving as an NCAA-certified unpaid assistant coach at Western Kentucky, where he worked with his father and Hilltopper head coach Jack Harbaugh from 1994-2001. As an offensive consultant, Harbaugh scouted and recruited prep prospects in several states, including Florida, Illinois and Indiana and was involved in recruiting 17 players on WKU's team that captured the 2002 Division I-AA National Championship.

Harbaugh comes from a family of coaches. In addition to his father, Jack, who coached for 41 years, including 14 at Western Kentucky, his brother John was recently named head coach of the Baltimore Ravens after spending 10 years in the Philadelphia Eagles organization. His brother-in-law, Tom Crean, is the head basketball coach at Indiana University.

Harbaugh is co-owner of Panther Racing in the Indy Racing League, which won the 2001 and 2002 IRL championship. In addition, he has been actively involved in community service ventures, including the Harbaugh Hill Foundation, the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children (Indiana University), the Jim Harbaugh Foundation, the Uhlich Children's Home and the Children's Miracle Network.

Jim has three children – sons Jay and James, Jr. and daughter, Grace. He married the former Sarah Feuerborn in January of 2008.

Lance ANDERSON

ASSISTANT COACH
Defensive Tackles/
Recruiting Coordinator

Lance Anderson is in his second season at Stanford in 2008 as the team's recruiting coordinator and defensive tackles coach. Anderson was responsible in heading the efforts of recruiting a 2008 class that ranked as high as No. 40 in the nation and will bring 18 new student-athletes to play football on The Farm in 2008.

In his first season at Stanford in 2007, Anderson's coaching helped the Cardinal defensive tackles clog up the middle to play a significant role in a Stanford defense that finished third in the Pac-10 in both tackles for loss and sacks, as well as fifth nationally in tackles for loss and 11th in sacks.

Anderson came to Stanford in January of 2007 after spending the previous two seasons working with current Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh at San Diego during the 2005 and 2006 campaigns. Anderson was also the recruiting coordinator at USD and coached the defensive line. He was a major contributor to the Toreros finishing 11-1 each season and winning back-to-back NCAA Division I-AA Mid-Major national championships.

Prior to joining Harbaugh in San Diego, Anderson had coached at Utah State, Saint Mary's (CA), Bucknell and Idaho State.

Anderson was the outside linebackers coach at Utah State in 2004 and assisted with all special teams for an Aggies' squad that was first in the nation in punt returns, 21st in kickoff returns and 28th in net punting.

Anderson spent the 2003 season in the Bay Area as the co-defensive coordinator and defensive line coach at Saint Mary's in Moraga. Under his guidance, the Gaels had four defensive players chosen to the I-AA Independent All-Star team with one of those players selected to play in the East-West Shrine Game. Safety Weston Borba was a First Team I-AA selection, linebackers Ray Mike and Heath Villarreal were Second Team picks, and linebacker Anthony Woodards earned honorable mention recognition.

His longest coaching stint was at Bucknell, where he coached for four seasons (1999-2002). Anderson coached the defensive line and was the recruiting coordinator in 2001 and '02 after coaching tight ends and assisting on the offensive line in 1999 and 2000. One of his players was a two-time First Team I-AA All-America defensive lineman while five of Anderson's pupils received all-league recognition. Bucknell's defense led the Patriot League in total defense in 2001 and '02 and finished fifth nationally in total defense in '01.

In 1999, Anderson coached running backs for one season for the Mobile Admirals of the Regional Football League. His team won the league championship while one of his players led the league in rushing and was named league MVP, and another was an all-league tight end.

A native of Rupert, Idaho, Anderson began his coaching career in 1997 at his alma mater, Idaho State. He spent two seasons with the Bengals (1997-98), the first as running backs coach and the second as assistant offensive line and tight ends coach.

Anderson played football, basketball and track at Minico High School in Idaho before walking on to the football team at Brigham Young in 1989. After serving an LDS mission in Phoenix, Arizona, Anderson walked on at Idaho State where he played linebacker in 1993 and '94. He earned a bachelor's degree in Biology from Idaho State in 1996 and is currently working on a master's degree in education at Bucknell.

Anderson and his wife, Sherri, have three children, Aubrey, Jaren and Braden.

Andy BUH

ASSISTANT COACH
Co-Defensive Coordinator/
Linebackers

Andy Buh's coaching effort and the production of his linebackers on the field in 2007 earned him a promotion to co-defensive coordinator.

Buh was responsible for coaching an aggressive group of linebackers at Stanford in 2007 that developed a reputation as a hard-hitting bunch. Buh helped develop current Stanford players Clinton Snyder and Pat Maynor into two of the top linebackers in the Pac-10. Snyder put up some of the biggest numbers in the conference last year, co-leading the league in fumbles forced, while also ranking among the Pac-10 leaders in tackles for loss, fumbles recovered, sacks and tackles.

Buh had collegiate coaching stops at Nevada (1997-99), California (2000-01), San Diego State (2002-05) and Fresno State (2006) prior to his arrival at Stanford in 2007.

Buh was a graduate assistant coach in 2006 at Fresno State, assisting with the linebackers and special teams for the Bulldogs' staff while also running the scout team.

For four seasons prior to moving to Fresno, he was the linebackers coach at San Diego State from 2002-05 where he helped the Aztecs put together a defensive unit in 2003 that ranked eighth in total defense nationally. One of Buh's pupils, Kirk Morrison, was twice named the Mountain West Conference Defensive Player of the Year. Under his tutelage in 2005, two SDSU linebackers were on the national watch lists for the Nagurski and Butkus Awards and both have gone on to NFL careers.

Buh twice coached players at San Diego State that led the Mountain West Conference in tackles: Matt McCoy in 2003 and Freddie Keiaho in 2005. Four of Buh's former players are currently in the NFL, including McCoy, who was a second round draft pick, Morrison and Keiaho, both third round selections, and Heath Farwell, who signed as a free agent.

Buh spent two seasons (2000-01) in Berkeley as a defensive administrative assistant for the Bears, where he worked with the defensive coordinator and linebackers.

He returned to his alma mater in 1997 as a graduate assistant coach for the next two seasons (1997-98) at Nevada, coaching the secondary and assisting with all special teams. He left Reno following the 1998 season only to return a few months later.

Buh was at Saint Mary's College in Moraga during the spring of 1999 as the Gaels' secondary coach, but he returned to Nevada prior to the 1999 season to coach the Wolf Pack secondary and assist with special teams. Buh's first coaching assignment was at his prep alma mater, Orange Glen High School, in 1996.

Buh was a two-year varsity letterwinner during the 1993 and 1994 seasons at Nevada, where he played linebacker under head coach Chris Ault. He also played at Palomar College from 1991-92 before transferring to Nevada. During his community college stint, Buh helped the Comets to a 20-2 overall record and a national championship in 1991. He was also named an All-American in his final season.

Buh earned his bachelor's degree in physical education from Nevada in 1996. A native of Escondido, California, he graduated from Orange Glen High School in 1991. He is married to the former Kelly Morris.

Chris DALMAN

ASSISTANT COACH
Offensive Line

Former Stanford and San Francisco 49ers offensive lineman Chris Dalman returned to The Farm as the team's offensive line coach in 2007 and made an immediate impact. Stanford made tremendous strides up front a year ago and much of the credit for Stanford's more potent offense could be traced directly to the vastly improved play of the team's offensive line under the direction of Dalman.

Stanford nearly doubled its point production in 2007 from the previous season and scored 20 or more points in half of its 12 games after reaching the 20-point mark only twice in its previous campaign. Stanford's offensive line gave up fewer sacks than the previous season and also helped power an offense that averaged nearly 100 yards more of total offense per contest than the 2006 group.

Prior to his arrival at Stanford, Dalman spent two seasons as the assistant offensive line coach for an Atlanta Falcons' team that was on the verge of making the playoffs in both campaigns. The Falcons' offensive line was responsible for creating running room for Warrick Dunn, who combined to rush for 2,566 yards during Dalman's two seasons in Atlanta.

Dalman was an English teacher at Palma High School in Salinas, California, and coached football from 2001-04 at the school before joining the Falcons.

He was a four-year starter for Stanford and a member of two bowl teams during his collegiate playing days. Dalman was a junior on Stanford's 1991 Aloha Bowl squad coached by Denny Green that finished the season with an 8-4 mark and was the third-highest scoring team in school history. As a fifth-year senior on the Cardinal's 1992 team coached by Bill Walsh, he helped lead the squad to a 10-3 record and a victory over Penn State in the Blockbuster Bowl. Dalman started 33 games for the Cardinal and was named Second Team All-Pac-10 in 1992. He played in both the East-West Shrine Game and the Hula Bowl in January of 1993 following his collegiate career.

A sixth round draft choice by San Francisco in 1993, Dalman spent his entire NFL playing career from 1993-99 with the 49ers before suffering a career-ending injury during the 2000 training camp. He played in 107 games, starting 64 at center and guard. Dalman captured one Super Bowl ring following the 1994 season in Super Bowl XXIX when San Francisco defeated the San Diego Chargers. He also played in three NFC championship games. San Francisco had winning seasons in each of his first six campaigns with the club and had a 74-38 overall regular season record during the seven years in which he played.

Dalman received his bachelor's degree in political science from Stanford in 1992. He grew up in Salinas and attended Palma High School, where he graduated from in 1988.

Dalman and wife, Yanne, have two children, Kate and Drew.

Tim DREVNO

ASSISTANT COACH
Tight Ends

Tim Drevno enters his second season as the tight ends coach at Stanford in 2008 and his 16th as a collegiate coach.

Prior to his arrival at Stanford, Drevno was the offensive coordinator and offensive line coach four seasons from 2003-06 at the University of San Diego. Current Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh retained Drevno after his arrival on the San Diego hill in 2004. The Toreros won NCAA Division I-AA Mid-Major national titles and Pioneer League championships in each of the last two campaigns the duo worked together.

The four Torero teams Drevno coached offensive football for enjoyed a tremendous amount of success, ranking as the nation's top offense twice as well as third once and ninth on the other occasion.

The 2006 squad that finished 11-1 overall led all NCAA Division I-AA teams in passing offense (293.3 ypg), total offense (494.25 ypg) and scoring offense (42.83 ppg). Quarterback Josh Johnson was one of four offensive All-Americans on the team and led all NCAA Division I-AA quarterbacks in passing efficiency (169.0 quarterback rating), touchdown passes (34, co-leader), points responsible for (24.33 ppg) and total offense (336.7 ypg), while throwing for 3,320 yards to also lead the country and running for another 721. He added 11 rushing touchdowns and even caught one TD pass.

San Diego set numerous offense school records in 2005, including a 42.6 points per game average and 485.2 yards of total offense per game.

In 2004, the Torero offense averaged 432.4 yards of total offense per game to rank ninth in the nation. The Toreros were also 11th in scoring offense (36.1 ppg) and 12th in passing offense (275.4 ypg).

Drevno directed USD's West Coast offense to 483.3 yards per game to lead the nation and a Pioneer Football League best 39.9 points per game in 2003 when the squad finished 8-2 and was co-champs of the Pioneer Football League's North Division. He also worked closely with quarterback Josh Johnson, who was a fifth round draft pick of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in last spring's NFL Draft and wide receiver Michael Gaspersan, who saw time with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Drevno was the offensive line coach at Idaho for three seasons (2000-02) prior to joining the USD staff. The Vandal offense ranked sixth in the nation in 2001 and eighth in 2000. He coached three NFL players while at Idaho, including Jake Scott, Rick Demulling and Patrick Venzke. Scott, a fifth round pick of Indianapolis in 2004, has started all 16 regular season games with the Colts each of the past three seasons (2005-07) and was in the lineup as a starter in the squad's Super Bowl XLI victory over the Chicago Bears on February 4, 2007. DeMulling was also drafted by Indianapolis in the seventh round of the 2001 NFL Draft and played four seasons with the Colts (2001-04) before two campaigns (2005-06) with the Detroit Lions and 2007 as a member of the Washington Redskins. Venzke spent time with the Colts and the Carolina Panthers before going onto play with NFL Europe.

Prior to his tenure at Idaho, Drevno's previous coaching stops included San Jose State as the offensive line coach (1999), UNLV (1998) as the running backs coach and Montana State (1993-98), where he coached the tight ends for three seasons (1993-95) before going from 1996 through the spring of 1998 as the running backs coach. While at San Jose State, Drevno worked with NFL players Jalani Hawkins (Houston Texans) and Joe Hayes (Green Bay Packers).

After earning a pair of All-Bay League honors as a prep at South Torrance High School, Drevno went on to a standout collegiate playing career. He spent his first two years of collegiate action at El Camino College, where he helped lead his club to a national title in 1987 and earned All-Mission League honors the following season. He moved on for three seasons at Cal State Fullerton from 1989-91 and was a two-year starter on the offensive line.

Drevno is a 1992 graduate of Cal State Fullerton with a bachelor's degree in criminal justice. Tim and his wife, Shannon, have three children, McKenna, Zachary and Baylee.

D.J. DURKIN

ASSISTANT COACH
Defensive Ends/
Special Teams Coordinator

D.J. Durkin enters his second season on the Stanford coaching staff where he will work with the team's defensive ends and special teams units.

A native of Youngstown, Ohio, Durkin coached defensive ends for Bowling Green in 2005, then moved over to coach the linebackers and become the Falcons' special teams coordinator in 2006.

Durkin, a 2001 graduate of Bowling Green, began his coaching career with the Falcons as a graduate assistant in 2001 and '02. He then spent two seasons at Notre Dame (2003, '04) as a graduate assistant before returning to his alma mater in 2005.

While at Notre Dame, Durkin assisted the staff in all aspects on defense with particular emphasis on working with the defensive ends, where he coached the school's all-time sack leader Justin Tuck in 2004. Durkin was also part of the Irish staff that led Notre Dame to the 2004 Insight.com Bowl.

Following his playing career, Durkin was a graduate assistant at Bowling Green during the 2001 and '02 seasons coaching the defensive ends. In 2002, the Falcons were 9-3 and ranked in the Top 20 of both major polls. In 2001, the Bowling Green defense was first in the Mid-American Conference in total defense, as well as four other major defensive categories.

A four-year starter at defensive end and outside linebacker for the Falcons as a player from 1997-2000, he was elected a two-year captain by his teammates. He started 33 games in his career and recorded 131 tackles, including 28 for loss. He led the team in sacks in 1998 and finished second on the squad in that category in 2000. He also received a number of awards during his career including the Ken Schoeni Award for character and toughness, the Carlos Jackson Award for personifying the values of a true student-athlete and the Leadership Award for displaying great leadership.

He earned a bachelors degree in business marketing from Bowling Green in 2001 and a masters degree in educational administration and supervision in May of 2004.

Durkin played three seasons at Boardman High School where he was an All-Conference and All-Northeast Ohio selection.

Durkin is married to the former Sarah Brumback.

Ron LYNN

ASSISTANT HEAD COACH
Co-Defensive Coordinator

One of the most respected defensive minds in the game today, Ron Lynn returns to the collegiate coaching ranks this season with a wealth of coaching experience gained from a 38-year career on the professional and collegiate level.

Lynn will work with a Stanford defense that was much improved in 2007 and ended up third in the Pac-10 in both sacks and tackles for loss, as well as fifth nationally in tackles for loss and 11th in sacks.

Lynn's long line of experience includes defensive coordinator positions in the National Football League with the San Diego Chargers (1986-91), Cincinnati Bengals (1992-93) and Washington Redskins (1994-96). He also was a secondary coach in the NFL with the New England Patriots (1997-99), Oakland Raiders (2000-03) and San Francisco 49ers (2004).

His NFL career was highlighted by his tenures with the Patriots and Raiders.

His most successful run came during the first three of his four seasons in Oakland when the club won three consecutive AFC West titles and reached the Super Bowl following the 2002 season. Lynn worked under head coach Jon Gruden for his first two seasons in the East Bay before Bill Callahan came on for his two campaigns with the club. Lynn also worked with current Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh when Harbaugh was the quarterbacks coach in Oakland during the 2002 and 2003 campaigns.

Working with head coach Pete Carroll in New England, Lynn helped coach the Patriots to an AFC East title in their first year with the club in 1997 and the playoffs in each of their first two seasons.

He most recently was the secondary coach for the San Francisco 49ers in 2004.

Lynn got his start in coaching as a graduate assistant at Toledo in 1966 before returning to coach from 1967-73 at his alma mater Mount Union College, where he earned a bachelor's degree in Chemistry from in 1966. He then moved on to college coaching jobs at Kent State (1974-76), San Jose State (1977-78), Pacific (1979) and California (1980-82), taking over as the Golden Bears' defensive coordinator in his final two seasons after spending his first year as the team's secondary coach.

He took his first job in professional football as the defensive coordinator for the Oakland Invaders and worked for all three seasons (1983-85) of the team's existence in the three-year history of the United States Football League. In 1985, the Invaders reached the final championship game the league conducted.

Ron and his wife, Cynthia, have three children, Ryon, John and Alec.

David SHAW

ASSISTANT COACH
Offensive Coordinator/
Wide Receivers

Former Stanford standout David Shaw enters his second season on the Cardinal coaching staff as the team's offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach.

Last season, the Cardinal offense nearly doubled its point production and improved in every category from the previous season. Last year's offense featured a trio of receivers (Mark Bradford, Evan Moore and Richard Sherman) that caught at least 39 passes and combined for 1,774 receiving yards and eight touchdowns.

Shaw came to Stanford along with current head coach Jim Harbaugh from the University of San Diego, where he spent the 2006 season coaching the nation's top-ranked Division I-AA offense as the passing game coordinator and wide receivers coach. Under his guidance, the high-powered Torero offense helped USD capture the Pioneer League championship and NCAA Division I-AA Mid-Major national title.

The 2006 squad finished 11-1 overall and led all NCAA Division I-AA teams in passing offense (293.3 ypg), total offense (494.25 ypg) and scoring offense (42.83 ppg). Quarterback Josh Johnson was one of four offensive All-Americans on the team and led all NCAA Division I-AA quarterbacks in passing efficiency (169.0 quarterback rating), touchdown passes (34, co-leader), points responsible for (24.33 ppg) and total offense (336.7 ypg), while throwing for 3,320 yards to also lead the country and running for another 721 on the ground. He added 11 rushing touchdowns and even caught one TD pass.

Shaw had coached the previous nine seasons in the NFL with the Philadelphia Eagles (1997), Oakland Raiders (1998-2001) and Baltimore Ravens (2002-05).

Shaw's most recent coaching job in the NFL with Baltimore included a stint as the quarterbacks and wide receivers coach from 2002-04 before working solely with the wide receivers in 2005. His tenure included a 2003 campaign that reaped an AFC North title and a 10-6 regular season record. Derrick Mason set a new franchise record with 86 receptions under Shaw's tutelage in 2005 when he also posted the third-biggest season to date in terms of receiving yards with 1,073. Mark Clayton set a franchise rookie record for receptions in 2005 when he caught 44 balls for 471 yards.

After three seasons of quality control with the Oakland Raiders from 1998-2000, Shaw moved into the role of quarterbacks coach in 2001 as the Raiders won a second straight AFC West title and finished the regular season with a 10-6 mark. Quarterback Rich Gannon made the NFL Pro Bowl for the second straight season and ended up as the game's MVP. Gannon had the third-most prolific campaign of his 16-year pro career during the 2001 regular season, throwing for 3,828 yards on 361-of-549 passing (65.8%).

Shaw got his start in the NFL in quality control with the Philadelphia Eagles in 1997.

His first two seasons of coaching came in the collegiate ranks at Western Washington, where he coached the outside linebackers in 1995 and the tight ends in 1996.

His father, Willie, was an assistant coach at Stanford from 1974-76 and again from 1989-91. He coached for a total of 33 seasons, including 15 in the NFL with the Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs, Minnesota Vikings, New Orleans Saints, Oakland Raiders, San Diego Chargers and St. Louis Rams.

Shaw was a four-year letterwinner (1991-94) at Stanford as a receiver. He was a member of Stanford's 1991 Aloha Bowl team coached by Dennis Green that finished the season with an 8-4 mark and was the third-highest scoring team in school history. He was also on the Cardinal's 1992 Blockbuster Bowl winning squad coached by Bill Walsh that had a 10-3 overall mark. Shaw finished his Stanford career with 57 catches for 664 yards and five touchdowns. Shaw also competed in a varsity track meet and a varsity basketball game while at Stanford before graduating in 1995 with a bachelor's degree in sociology.

David was also a three-sport athlete as a prep at James Logan High School in Union City, California.

David and his wife, Kori, have two children, Carter and Keegan.

Willie TAGGART

ASSISTANT COACH
Running Backs

Willie Taggart is in his second season as running backs coach at Stanford after a successful first campaign that saw the Cardinal nearly double its rushing yards from the previous season.

Prior to his arrival at Stanford, Taggart spent the previous eight seasons on the Western Kentucky coaching staff (1999-2006) and helped guide the Hilltoppers to eight consecutive winning campaigns during the stretch. He worked with current Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh in his first three seasons of coaching from 1999-2001. Taggart started his coaching career as Western Kentucky's wide receivers coach in 1999 before working with the quarterbacks from 2000-06. He was also the co-offensive coordinator in 2001 and '02, helping lead the Hilltoppers to the Division I-AA national championship in '02, and was promoted to assistant head coach in 2003.

Under Taggart's guidance, quarterback Justin Haddix set school career records with 8,890 yards of total offense, a 57.1 completion percentage, 50 touchdowns and a 137.28 pass efficiency rating. Haddix also finished his career ranked second all-time on the Hill with 541 completions and 7,929 yards passing. As a senior, he earned All-Gateway Football Conference honorable mention recognition for the second year in a row after completing a career-high 171 of his 279 passes for 2,186 yards – the third-highest single-season total in school history at the time – and 14 touchdowns. He ranked second in the league in passing average, third in total offense and fifth in passing efficiency. Haddix was also a Second Team All-GFC selection in 2004 while picking up the league's Freshman of the Year award in 2003.

Taggart helped coach an offensive unit that set school records for points (432), total yards (5,479) and first downs (263) en route to the 2002 NCAA Division I-AA national championship. The Hilltoppers ranked second in the nation in pass efficiency and sixth in rushing, and averaged 38.8 points per contest in four playoff victories.

In Taggart's first year calling plays in 2000, WKU ran for 293.4 yards per contest, leading the Gateway Football Conference and ranking second in the country in the category. The Toppers averaged 33.0 points per game and led the Ohio Valley Conference in rushing for the second straight year as WKU claimed the league title and advanced to the quarterfinals of the I-AA playoffs. In his first season in 1999, WKU ranked eighth in the nation and first in the conference in rushing.

Taggart's efforts helped WKU quarterbacks earn honorable mention all-conference accolades in three consecutive seasons – Jason Johnson (2000), Donte Pimpleton (2001) and Jason Michael (2002).

Taggart also spent his collegiate playing days at Western Kentucky, where he became the top rushing quarterback in Division I-AA history with 3,997 yards by the end of his career, which was also a WKU standard for all runners. In addition, he broke the school record for points at Western Kentucky with 280.

In each of his last two collegiate seasons, he was a finalist for the prestigious Walter Payton Award which is an honor given annually to the top offensive player in I-AA football. Taggart finished fourth in the balloting in 1997 and seventh as a senior the following year. An All-American as a senior, he was also the 1998 I-AA Independents' Offensive Player of the Year. Taggart was recruited to WKU by Jim Harbaugh to play for his father, Jack.

He was only the third WKU athlete in the past half-century to hold down the quarterback slot for the Hilltoppers four straight years. Taggart – who set 11 WKU school records for rushing and scoring – had his jersey retired on October 23, 1999.

Taggart graduated from Western Kentucky with a bachelor's degree in social sciences in 1998.

As a prep standout at Manatee High School, he was a first team all-state and all-conference selection as a senior after guiding the Hurricanes to the state 5A Championship game. He led MHS to the state title his junior season and helped the school post a 26-4 record during that two-year span while recording more than 3,000 yards passing and 975 yards on the ground.

Willie and his wife Taneshia have two children, Willie, Jr. and Jackson.

Clayton WHITE

ASSISTANT COACH
Defensive Backs

Former NFL player Clayton White returns for his second season as Stanford's defensive backs coach in 2008. White's coaching immediately paid dividends for the Cardinal in 2007 as he helped develop Bo McNally into the No. 2 tackler in the Pac-10 and one of the top safeties in the conference. He also oversaw the successful conversion of Austin Yancy from wide receiver to strong safety, while veteran senior defensive back Nick Sanchez flourished under his leadership.

White also coached the secondary at Western Michigan in 2006 after spending two seasons at Western Carolina (2004-05) as the defensive backs coach and special teams assistant.

While at Western Michigan, he was part of a Broncos staff that led the 2006 team to an 8-5 record and an appearance in the 2007 International Bowl played in Toronto. He coached a defense that led the nation with 24 interceptions and 3.54 sacks per game, while ranking tied for second with 37 turnovers gained, tied for sixth in yards rushing yards allowed per game (76.1) and seventh in turnover margin (+0.92). White was part of the WMU defense that set a MAC record for fewest rushing yards allowed per game.

He spent the previous two seasons (2004-05) at Western Carolina where he coached the defensive backs, was a special teams assistant and recruiting coordinator. The Catamounts led the nation in pass defense, ranked fifth in passing efficiency defense and 18th in overall defense in 2005. He also coached a pair of defensive backs (Francis Brown and Primus Glover) to First Team All-SOCON honors.

White's special teams unit ranked third in the SOCON in yards per punt return (9.84 ypr) in 2004, while Western Carolina recorded two blocked kicks that were returned for touchdowns in 2005. White also served as the football program's recruiting coordinator during his two seasons.

A native of Dunn, North Carolina, White was a member of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers from March to August of 2003 as a linebacker and special teams player. He spent two seasons (2001-02) with the New York Giants, also as a linebacker and a member of the special teams unit. White played every special teams snap during the 2001 season and made seven tackles for the Giants.

White was a three-year starter at linebacker from 1999-2001 and a member of the special teams unit during his collegiate playing days with North Carolina State. He ended his career with his name in the record book in several categories, including career tackles for loss (33), single-season tackles for loss and tackles in a single game. He was named North Carolina State's special teams MVP in 1997.

White received his bachelor's of science degree from the school in parks, recreation and tourism with a concentration in sports management in 2001.

He enjoyed an outstanding prep career at Triton High School in Dunn, North Carolina, where he was a first team all-state selection as a defensive back and all-region quarterback. He was named the most valuable player of the 1996 North Carolina East-West All-Star Game and participated in the North Carolina-South Carolina Shrine Bowl.

He is married to the former Kelly Quinlan.

Shannon TURLEY

STRENGTH AND CONDITIONING COORDINATOR

Shannon Turley begins his second season as the team's strength and conditioning coordinator, heading up Stanford's comprehensive injury prevention and athletic performance enhancement program.

Prior to joining Stanford's staff in 2007, Turley spent one season as the director of strength and athletic performance at the University of San Diego. He also worked at the University of Missouri for five seasons (2001-05), spending his first two seasons as a graduate assistant on the Mizzou staff while earning his master's degree in education and counseling psychology with a concentration in sports psychology. He spent the final three seasons as the Tiger's assistant director of strength and conditioning. While at Missouri, Turley assisted with the player development program for the football team while directing the training efforts of the women's volleyball and wrestling programs. He also directed the annual Mizzou Athletic Performance Developmental clinic and was responsible for supervising the professional development of three graduate assistant coaches and four undergraduate intern coaches. Turley also developed and directed a comprehensive sports nutrition program for 20 varsity teams that included negotiating sponsorships with Kraft Foods and Gatorade, while managing the department's budget for the purchase of nutritional supplements.

Prior to his stint with the Tigers, Turley served the Kansas City Royals Baseball Club during the 2001 season when he was directly responsible for the strength and conditioning development of the Double-A affiliate Wichita Wranglers.

Turley earned his bachelor's degree in science of human nutrition, foods and exercise from Virginia Tech in 2000. While with the Hokies, Turley served as President of the Exercise Science Student Organization and began his career in strength and conditioning as a student assistant coach following his track and field career.

He is a certified member of the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches Association and the National Strength and Conditioning Association, as well as a certified sports nutritionist with the International Society of Sports Nutrition.

Support Staff

Mike SANFORD

FOOTBALL STAFF
Offensive Assistant

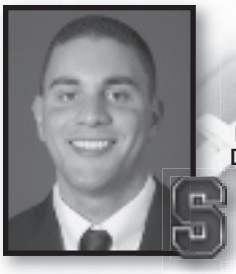

Former Boise State quarterback Mike Sanford enters his second season on the Stanford coaching staff as offensive assistant.

Sanford played on four bowl teams during his five-year career at Boise State, as the Broncos compiled a cumulative 54-9 record during his stay, including a sparkling 11-1 record as a senior in 2004 and a victory over Louisville in the Liberty Bowl.

After concluding his playing career, Sanford volunteered as a student assistant on the Bronco staff during spring practice, where he assisted now head coach Chris Peterson with the quarterbacks.

Prior to joining the Cardinal program, Sanford served as a graduate assistant at UNLV for two seasons (2005-06), where he worked with his father, Mike, who is the head coach of the Rebels and former offensive coordinator at Stanford. His main duties focused on working primarily with the quarterbacks and kicking game.

Sanford received his bachelor's degree in political science from Boise State in 2005. He and his wife, Ann-Marie, reside in Menlo Park.

Matt WEISS

FOOTBALL STAFF
Defensive Assistant

Former Vanderbilt punter Matt Weiss enters his fourth season on Stanford's coaching staff and his first season in his new role as defensive assistant. He has spent the last three seasons serving as a graduate assistant, where he has worked primarily on the defensive side of the ball. Weiss is responsible for all opponent offensive breakdowns, tendency reports, scouting reports and directing the offensive scout team during practice sessions. He also works with special teams coordinator D.J. Durkin in all aspects of Stanford's special teams. He previously worked with the team's defensive backs in 2005 before moving over to assist with the coaching duties involving linebackers and special teams in 2006.

Weiss was a member of the Vanderbilt football team in 2001 and '02 and earned a spot on the Southeastern Conference's Academic Honor Roll in 2002. He graduated magna cum laude from Vanderbilt in the fall of 2004 with a bachelor's degree in economics and human and organizational development. He earned a master's degree from Stanford in liberal arts last fall.

A native of Cheshire, Conn., Weiss played quarterback at Hopkins School in New Haven where he helped his team to a perfect 12-0 record and the New England Prep School Class C Championship as a senior.

Weiss is single and resides in Los Altos.

Matt DOYLE

ASSISTANT ATHLETIC DIRECTOR
Director of Football Operations

Matt Doyle enters his ninth year with the Stanford Football program in 2008 and second as Assistant Athletic Director and Director of Football Operations. Doyle began his tenure at Stanford in July of 2000 as associate recruiting coordinator and continued in a dual role of recruiting and football operations prior to his appointment under Jim Harbaugh.

In his current role, he oversees the day-to-day-operations of the football program which includes managing the football budget, team travel, community outreach, The Jim Harbaugh Football Camps, the annual Stanford Football High School coaching clinic and passing tournament, the "12th Man" Summer Jobs program, and other team events and special projects. In his role, Doyle works closely with the University Faculty and Staff and the Athletic Department's marketing, media relations and development offices. He also serves as a liaison to professional scouts and player agents.

In 2008 Doyle was nominated for the Amy J. Blue Award, which honors Stanford University employees who are exceptionally dedicated, supportive of their colleagues and passionate about their work.

The Cardinal Community Outreach program has reached new heights under Doyle's watch, earning the prestigious Thomas Ford Award in each of the past four years (2004-07). The award is given annually to the Stanford Athletics team that "demonstrates a special commitment to participation in the local community."

Prior to coming to The Farm, Doyle taught world history, U.S. government and journalism, while also coaching football and baseball at his alma mater St. Francis High School in nearby Mountain View. Doyle earned his bachelor's degree in history, with a minor in English, from UC Davis in 1998, where he played outfield on the baseball team.

Doyle and his wife, Hillary, married in the summer of 2005, reside in Redwood City. The couple welcomed their first child, Catherine, born on March 7, 2008.

Mike EUBANKS

ASSISTANT ATHLETIC DIRECTOR
Director of Football Administration

Mike Eubanks joined the football program in the summer of 2007. In his role as Assistant AD/Director of Football Administration, he works closely with Recruiting Coordinator Lance Anderson on all aspects of football recruiting. Eubanks assisted the Stanford coaches in bringing in a 2008 recruiting class that has been ranked as high as No. 40 nationally.

Eubanks' primary responsibilities include the planning of official and unofficial visits, management of the recruiting database and special projects within the football department.

Eubanks graduated from Stanford in 1997 with a bachelor of science degree in chemistry and later earned his master's in chemistry from Stanford in 2000. Mike and his wife, Carridine, reside in Belmont.

Jon HASKINS

FOOTBALL STAFF
Director of Player Development

Former Stanford and NFL player Jon Haskins is entering his second season with the program. Haskins' primary duties focus on football operations and recruiting.

Prior to joining the staff at Stanford, Haskins was a technical advisor for The Sports Studio, a company that produced sports themed movies and commercials. From 2002-2004, Haskins was a graduate assistant coach at Duke University, coaching the offensive line and tight ends.

Haskins was a four-year starter for Stanford from 1994-97 at outside and inside linebacker after coming to The Farm as a USA Today prep All-American. He was a two-time honorable mention All-Pac-10 selection and was a part of two Cardinal bowl teams (1995 Sun Bowl, 1996 Liberty Bowl). Haskins, who had 250 tackles in his collegiate career, played in the Blue/Gray and Hula Bowl All-Star Games following his senior season. He was selected in the seventh round of the 1998 NFL Draft by the San Diego Chargers.

Haskins, who earned his bachelor's degree from Stanford in public policy in 2000, played professionally for three seasons (1998-2000), two in the NFL (San Diego and Philadelphia in 1998; San Diego in 1999) and one in the XFL. He received a master's degree in humanities from Duke in 2007.

Haskins is single and resides in Palo Alto.

Coleman HUTZLER

FOOTBALL STAFF
Recruiting Assistant

Coleman Hutzler begins his second season with Stanford Football as a recruiting assistant working closely with recruiting coordinator Lance Anderson. Hutzler assisted Anderson in bringing a 2008 recruiting class that has been ranked as high as No. 40 nationally.

Hutzler worked under current Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh as a defensive assistant at the University of San Diego in 2006, where he helped the USD defense rank among the best in the country in I-AA football.

A native of Las Vegas, Nevada, Hutzler graduated from Middlebury College in Middlebury, Vermont, with a bachelor's in psychology in 2006. He played linebacker for the Panthers from 2002-05 and finished his career second on the school's all-time list in tackles with 246. He also accounted for 26 tackles for loss, 10 quarterback sacks, three interceptions and three forced fumbles while being named team captain.

Hutzler was also a prep standout at The Meadows School in Las Vegas, where he graduated in 2002 after leading his team to its fifth consecutive AA State Championship and state record 41 consecutive victories.

Casey MOORE

FOOTBALL STAFF
Graduate Assistant

One of the most productive fullbacks in Stanford history, Casey Moore returns to The Farm in 2008 as a graduate assistant.

A four-year starter at fullback, he entered the lineup for the third game of the 1999 season and started 44 consecutive contests through the 2002 campaign. Known for his big play ability, he ran for 961 career yards on 158 carries, an average of 6.1 yards per rush. He also reached the end zone 16 times in his Cardinal career, logging 11 touchdowns on the ground while hauling in five scoring passes.

Forever in Stanford lore for his epic Big Game performances, his 94-yard touchdown run against Cal in 1999 was the longest in Big Game history and the second-longest in Cardinal annals. Against Cal in 2000, he scored a pair of touchdowns – including a 25-yard reception on Stanford's first play of overtime that gave the Cardinal a 36-30 win and him his second consecutive Frank Rehm Memorial Award as the outstanding back in The Big Game.

Twice a first team Pac-10 All-Academic selection, Moore was also tabbed honorable mention all conference in 2002. He graduated from Stanford in 2003 with a bachelor's degree in public policy, while his graduate work on The Farm will be in the School of Education. Following his collegiate career, Moore was chosen by the Carolina Panthers in the seventh round of the 2003 NFL Draft.

Moore and his wife, Karen Spencer, reside in Palo Alto.

Jordan PAOPAO

FOOTBALL STAFF
Recruiting Assistant

Jordan Paopao begins his collegiate coaching career in 2008 as the Recruiting Assistant at Stanford.

A product of the University of San Diego, he was a four-year starter at center for the Toreros – including the first three under current Cardinal head coach Jim Harbaugh. The anchor of USD's offensive line, he was a three-time first team All-Pioneer Football League selection and was thrice tabbed by The Sports Network as a first team Mid-Major All-American. The Oceanside, CA native was also given honorable mention FCS All-America accolades by The Sports Network as a senior, while Football Gazette tabbed him a first team All-American in 2006 following second team honors in 2005. His Torero teams posted consecutive 11-1 seasons with PFL championships and a top Mid-Major ranking in both 2005 and '06, while the '07 squad went 9-2 and shared the PFL title.

USD's student-athlete representative at the 2007 NCAA National Leadership Conference, the Oceanside, Calif. native was also a two-time PFL All-Academic selection. Paopao graduated in 2008 with a Bachelor of Accountancy with emphasis in Supply Chain and a minor in Spanish.

Paopao is single and resides in Redwood City.

Nick HOLZ

FOOTBALL STAFF
Recruiting/Operations Assistant

Nick Holz enters his first season with Stanford Football as the Recruiting and Operations Assistant, returning to his native Bay Area. He began his collegiate coaching career last season at Nebraska, where he served as the Offensive Quality Control and Video Intern.

Born in Walnut Creek, Holz was a two-year letterwinner at De La Salle High School and was named the team's Most Inspirational Player following the Spartans' 2002 National Championship season.

Holz went on to a four-year career at the University of Colorado, serving as the Buffaloes' holder for three years while also catching three passes for 29 yards as a senior in 2006. The first Buffs player in 20 years to lock down holding duties, he was honored by his teammates with The Regiment Award following his senior year, presented annually to the CU player who makes the greatest contribution with the least recognition. He graduated from Colorado in 2006 with a bachelor's degree in communications.

FOOTBALL STAFF
Equipment Manager

Gary Hazelitt enters his ninth season as Stanford's head equipment manager. He is responsible for overseeing the purchasing, fitting, maintenance and distribution of equipment for the entire Stanford athletic program, with his primary duties focused on the needs of the football program. Hazelitt is also responsible for the overall budgeting of the athletic department equipment needs and oversees the allocation and disbursement of the department's apparel contract. A certified member of the Athletic Equipment Manager's Association, Hazelitt served as the head equipment manager at San Jose State (1990-99) and was the assistant equipment manager at Cal State Fullerton (1983-89) before assuming his duties at Stanford.

Hazelitt resides in San Jose with his wife, LuAnn and daughters Bethany and Abby.

Mike GLEESON

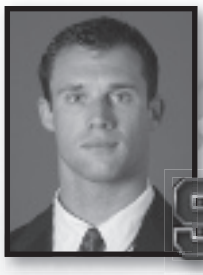

FOOTBALL STAFF
Video Director

Mike Gleeson begins his 16th season as the video director for Stanford's athletic department in 2008. A native of Napa Valley, Gleeson came to Stanford after 10 seasons in professional football, including two with the New Orleans Saints, four with the Miami Dolphins, two with the Atlanta Falcons and two in the World Football League.

In his current position, Gleeson oversees all of the audio, video and computer needs for Stanford Football. His responsibilities include videotaping of all practices and games, and editing for the strategic preparation and planning by the football coaching staff.

In addition, Gleeson also edits weekly highlight videos for the football program as well as season recruiting videos for football, men's basketball and women's basketball. He has been named the Video Director of the Year in the Pacific-10 Conference five times during his Stanford career.

Gleeson, who graduated from California State University at Sacramento in 1989 with a bachelors degree in business management, has one daughter, Clare.

Dave FORMAN

FOOTBALL STAFF
Assistant Strength and Conditioning Coach

Dave Forman enters his second season as the assistant strength and conditioning coach for the Stanford football program.

Prior to his appointment at Stanford, Forman served in a similar capacity at Northern Arizona University, working primarily with the women's volleyball, track, women's tennis and women's swimming and diving programs while assisting with the football team. He also served as an assistant strength and conditioning coach at Sacramento State, where he worked closely with the football and women's basketball programs. Forman also served an internship at Notre Dame during the summer of 2006 and served as a graduate assistant strength and conditioning coach at the University of Mississippi from June 2005 to May of '06 while earning his master's degree in exercise science. Prior to his stint at Ole Miss, he volunteered on the strength and conditioning staff at USC where he worked primarily with the Trojan football program.

A native of Glendale, NY, Forman earned his bachelor's degree in kinesiology from James Madison University in 2002. He also lettered in football for the Dukes as a linebacker and safety.

Theresa MIRAGLIA

FOOTBALL STAFF
Administrative Associate

Theresa Miraglia is in her 16th year at Stanford and seventh season with the Cardinal football program in 2008. In her current position, she is the administrative associate for the football program in addition to processing all football related expenses. Prior to joining the football program, Theresa worked in the Athletics Accounting Department for eight years. She has one son, Drew.

Jon OSWALD

FOOTBALL STAFF
Video Assistant

Jon Oswald is in his second season as an assistant in the video department in 2008. The 2007 graduate of San Diego State worked for three seasons as the video coordinator of the University of San Diego football program from 2004-06 while current Stanford head coach Jim Harbaugh was at the helm of the Toreros. In his current role, he assists video director Mike Gleeson in all aspects of the video department, including videotaping of all practices and games, and editing for the strategic preparation and planning by the football coaching staff. He also assists in the editing of weekly and season highlight videos for the football program.

Dorrick ROY

FOOTBALL STAFF
Assistant Strength and Conditioning Coach

Dorrick Roy enters his second season as an assistant strength and conditioning coach for the Stanford football program. He also works closely with the Cardinal wrestling program. Prior to Stanford, Coach Roy spent two years working with the football program at the University of Louisville during which time they appeared in the 2006 Gator Bowl and won the 2007 BCS FedEx Orange Bowl. Prior to Louisville, he spent one year at the University of Kansas as an intern strength and conditioning coach assisting with the football program. He also worked with the University of Utah football team during the 2003 Mountain West Conference championship season.

As a tight end at the University of Nebraska, Dorrick appeared in four bowl games and won three national championships with the Cornhuskers. After college, he was signed as a free-agent by the Oakland Raiders. A native of Inglewood, Calif. Roy is a USAW Level 1 coach and is currently pursuing a master's degree in physical education.
