S STANFORD UNIVERSITY

THE NATION'S PREMIER UNIVERSITY

The world all at once: Limitless possibilities are at the heart of Stanford University.

Global positioning systems and gene splicing, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and The Grapes of Wrath, the football huddle and the T-formation, Yahoo! and Google—all bear the mark of a Stanford individual. At Stanford, you will find the entire universe of what humankind knows and is endeavoring to know. From your first days on campus, this universe will be yours to explore, yours to discover. Stanford will ask that intellectual curiosity be your compass, that excellence be your true north.

Along the way, you will have the guidance of extraordinary faculty mentors who are at the forefront of advancing the world's understanding of subjects ranging from geophysics to history to bioscience to musical composition. You will also have the friendship of fellow students who will awe and inspire you as much for their humanity as for their talents. As you pursue the questions that interest you most, your mentors and friends will give you the freedom to risk temporary failure as you push yourself both intellectually and personally—along with the freedom and encouragement to pursue what you love.

Your reward will be the exhilaration of discovery—the exhilaration of true excellence.

"The Stanford education has meant everything to me. It instilled a love of learning that will last a lifetime. It also exposed me to bright, exceptionally talented people who pushed me to new intellectual and athletic heights. Stanford offers a distinct opportunity to be apart of an institution devoted to excellence in both academics and athletics. If you are serious student and want to perform at the highest level in your sport, then Stanford is the place you."

Rob Grube, four-time All-American and 2006 Pac-10 Player of the Year

Members of the men's golf team match their collegiate playing career with a prestigious Stanford education. Stanford University is consistently ranked as one of the best overall colleges in the world.

According to the U.S. News and World Report 2010 Graduate School Rankings, Stanford ranked as follows nationally:

- No. 1: Biological Sciences
- No. 1: Computer Science
- No. 1: Chemistry
- No. 1: Psychology
- No. 2: Business
- No. 2: Education

"The level and prestige of a Stanford education is an asset that is unparalleled at this level of collegiate golf. It distinguishes one from their peers in all walks of life, especially professional golf, and is something that can never be taken away. And while at times it may not seem worth the work during one's time here, a Stanford education's benefits will be reaped for many years to come; you will endlessly thank yourself for having one."

Dodge Kemmer, two-time GCAA All-American Scholar

S BEYOND CAMPUS SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA

From bustling cosmopolitan cities to quiet coastal retreats, the San Francisco Bay Area is incomparable. First-class attractions, world-class athletics, cultural diversity, remarkable skylines and breathtaking views make this region one of the world's most popular destinations.

Stanford's campus is located less than an hour's drive from San Francisco to the north, just minutes from the Silicon Valley to the south and within easy reach of the breathtaking coastal cities that line the Pacific Ocean to the west.

South of the Stanford campus are the cities of San Jose and Santa Clara, the anchors to the Silicon Valley. Computer firms and software companies can be found throughout the region, which is considered the leader among the world's technology industry.

One of the world's greatest stretches of coastline is located within a short drive from Stanford. To the south is the Monterey Peninsula, which includes the picturesque towns of Monterey, Carmel and Santa Cruz. The Monterey Bay Aquarium, Cannery Row and 17-Mile Drive along Pebble Beach are musts for visitors.

Further north and east of Marin County is the home to the Napa Wine Country and within a few hours drive from the Bay Area is Lake Tahoe, home to some of the finest skiing in the country and the wonders of Yosemite National Park.

The Bay Area is also home to six major professional sports franchises, including the San Francisco 49ers, Oakland Raiders, San Francisco Giants, Oakland A's, San Jose Sharks and Golden State Warriors.

Other local attractions include the Stanford Golf Course, Paramount's Great America Theme Park (Santa Clara, 15 minutes away), Santana Row shopping center (San Jose, 25 min. away), Santa Cruz Beach Boardwalk (Santa Cruz, 45 min. away) and Pebble Beach (Monterey, 1.5 hours away).

STANFORD GOLF COURSE

Opened in 1930, the Stanford Golf Course is steeped in tradition and is annually rated as one of the finest courses in the country.

Designed by architects Billy Bell, George C. Thomas and Alistair McKenzie, Stanford Golf Course continues to host some of the top intercollegiate events in the country, including the Stanford Invitational, Pac-10 championships, NCAA West Regionals, NCAA Women's Championships and USGA Junior Amateur Qualifying.

The famed 12th hole is one of the most difficult in Northern California with four trees lining the middle of the fairway. The 18th tee offers one of the most spectacular views of Bay Area, with the skyline of San Francisco clearly visible in the distance.

A true gem, Stanford Golf Course has honed the skills of many of Stanford's top talents, including Tiger Woods, Tom Watson and Notah Begay III, to name a few.

S SIEBEL VARSITY GOLF TRAINING COMPLEX

Stanford University Athletics has teamed with Robert Trent Jones II Golf Course Architects to create what is arguably the most innovative practice facility in all of golf. The 30-acre practice center is designed to provide Stanford's men's and women's intercollegiate teams a unique training experience at a facility that is unmatched in collegiate golf.

Opened in April of 2008, the Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex is crafted on 30 acres of previously undeveloped land adjacent to the Stanford Golf Course. The distinctive quality of the facility is its six green complexes, complete with bunkering, each inspired by a different design style that Stanford's men's and women's intercollegiate teams play on a regular basis, each complete with intrinsic grasses and sand textures.

The Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex offers six green complexes, complete with bunkering, each inspired by a different design style. Created to "train by scenario," the Stanford men's and women's intercollegiate teams have the opportunity to play and practice shots that they will face in tournament competition, as each aspect of the facility is designed to emulate courses played during the year.

With a practice facility like none other in the world, the Stanford men's and women's golf teams will be better prepared to challenge any competitor and continue to seek excellence.

COACHING STAFF

2009-10 STANFORD MEN'S GOLF

Conrad Ray

The Knowles Family Director of Men's Golf
Stanford '97
Sixth Season

Conrad Ray, a former Cardinal standout and touring professional, begins his sixth season as The Knowles Family Director of Men's Golf at Stanford.

During his tenure as head coach, Ray has guided the Cardinal to four appearances in the NCAA Championships, including winning the school's eighth national title in 2007.

In addition, Stanford golfers have been well-decorated under Ray's watch, as the program has produced 10 All-Americans, six players who have earned national academic recognition, one Pacific-10 Conference Player of the Year, one Pac-10 Conference Freshman of the Year, eight first team all-conference players and 17 Pac-10 all-academic selections.

Last season, Ray guided the Cardinal to its fifth appearance in the NCAA Championships this decade, where Stanford finished tied for 20th. During the course of the season, Stanford posted three top-10 finishes, capped off by a first place showing at the USC/Ashworth Invitational.

Steve Ziegler earned PING All-America honors and was a first team All-Pac-10 selection. David Chung earned second team all-conference honors as a freshman while Ziegler, Dodger Kemmer and Daniel Lim earned all-conference academic honors.

During the 2007-2008 season, Ray led his team to its fourth consecutive post season appearance and third NCAA Championship since his start in 2004. At the extremely difficult Kampen Course of Purdue University, the Cardinal improved four places on the leaderboard with each day of the tournament, but fell just one stroke short of its ninth NCAA title in an exciting finish on the 18th. Although Stanford came in second, it displayed why it once again has become a force to be reckoned with in the collegiate golf world and is capable of capturing the national title every year. Ray helped shape two All-Americans, the Pac-10 Scholar Athlete of the Year (for men's golf), the Pac-10 Freshman of the Year, two all-conference players and an honorable mention golfer, and three Pac-10 All-Academic honorees.

In 2006-07, Ray directed one of the most successful Stanford teams in history, guiding the Cardinal to its first national title since 1994. Ray, a member of that 1994 squad, is one of the elite few NCAA head coaches to have won an NCAA title as both a student-athlete and coach. Under Ray's guidance, the Cardinal led wire-to-wire at the 2007 NCAA Championships in Williamsburg, Va., and claimed an eighth national title for the program. The 12-stroke victory capped an impressive season, during which the squad won seven tournaments and earned a No. 1 national ranking. All five Stanford golfers were named All-Americans at the conclusion of the season, the highest total in a single season in program history. Additionally, the squad produced an Academic All-American, three Pac-10 All-Academic honorees, five all-conference selections, five all-region selections and a GCAA All-Freshman honoree. Ray was named the 2007 Pac-10 Coach of the Year, the Pacific Regional Coach of the Year and the Dave Williams/Eaton Golfpride National Coach of the Year following the 2007 campaign.

In 2005-06, Ray's second year at the helm of the program, the Cardinal posted 10 top-10 finishes and advanced to the NCAA West Regional in Tucson, Ariz. Sophomore Rob Grube was tabbed Pac-10 Co-Player of the Year and was honored as an All-American for the second time in his career.

In his first season on The Farm, Ray led the Cardinal to its first NCAA Championship appearance since 2001. Under Ray's leadership, Stanford tied for 18th overall while freshman Rob Grube tied for fifth individually, becoming the first Stanford golfer to record a top-five finish since 1998.

"Conrad is a great fit for Stanford and brings a wealth of knowledge of the game from his professional experience," said Stanford Athletic Director Bob Bowlsby. "As a former student-athlete and member of the 1994 NCAA Championship team, he understands what it takes to succeed here at Stanford."

"Stanford University and its men's golf program are two things that I am very proud to be a part of. The history of our program, the beautiful setting of the Stanford campus, the education that a student athlete receives, the facilities we have at our disposal, and the people that make Stanford what it is are all things that I look forward to experiencing every day of the week. I feel fortunate to be able to try and do my part as the Knowles Family Director of Men's Golf to continue to build upon our success and traditions as well as have a hand in what the future holds for one of the all time great collegiate golf programs in the history of the game."

Ray is a 1997 graduate of Stanford where he earned a bachelor's degree in public policy.

A three-year letterwinner for the Cardinal golf team, Ray was a member of the 1994 NCAA Championship squad and a teammate of Tiger Woods, Casey Martin and Notah Begay. He captained the team in 1997 and was an All-Pac-10 and Pac-10 All-Academic selection that season as well. As a senior, he posted six top-10 finishes and nine under-par rounds. Ray's 73.95 stroke average was second-best on the squad.

Ray qualified for the U.S. Open held at Pinehurst in June of 2005. He has played on the Nationwide Tour and other world tours since 1998 and achieved 12 top-10 finishes in that span. He has worked extensively with numerous golf instructors throughout the country and has organized and administered various pro-am and fundraising tournaments, including the Cardinal Golf Classic, the Karl Potach Memorial Tournament for children's cancer research and the Bart McCormick Classic. Ray has been a member of the Golf Coaches Association National Advisory Board since July 2006 and will serve as the third vice president of the organization starting this July.

Ray was also asked to represent the United States at the 2008 Palmer Cup. Following the successful 2007-08 campaign with Stanford, Ray traveled to Scotland in June to serve as one of the three coaches selected by the Golf Coaches Association of America (GCAA) for the U.S. team at the 2008 Palmer Cup, a prestigious tournament that pits European collegiate golfers against their American counterparts in match play. The Americans led going into the final day of the tournament, but were edged out by the Europeans on the final day of play.

Ray is married to the former Jennifer Woods. The couple has a three-year-old daughter, Ella Katherine Ray.

COACHING STAFF

Matt Tight

Assistant Coach
Pepperdine '97
Third Season

Matt Tight, a 1997 graduate of Pepperdine University, begins his third season as an assistant coach at Stanford.

Prior to joining the program, Tight served various roles in the investment banking industry both in New York City and Chicago.

"Matt brings a skill set that is highly valued to our program," said Knowles Family Director of Men's Golf Conrad Ray. "The business aspect of running a top caliber college golf program deserves great attention. Matt is able to provide this while at the same time having a good understanding of what Division I athletics is all about."

Tight earned a bachelor's degree in English from Pepperdine University where he also lettered in Tennis. A native of McLean, Va., Tight and his wife Cheryl currently reside in Atherton, Calif. with their daughter, Madison.

Neale Smith

Sports Psychologist

Neale Smith is a Performance Enhancement Consultant for the Stanford golf program. Smith works with a variety of athletes, including touring golf professionals, amateurs and college golfers, assisting with the improvement process and mental aspect of the game. Some of his current clients on the PGA Tour include Hunter Mahan, Chris Tidland, among others. Smith spent ten years playing golf professionally on the PGA Tour, Australian PGA Tour, Canadian Tour, Asian Tour, Von Nida Tour, Golden State Tour and Tommy Armour Tour. He has an educational background in Sport Psychology, Sport Science and Education.

Stanford captured the 2009 Gifford Intercollegiate Championship this fall at the CordeValle Golf Club in San Martin.

2009-10 Stanford Men's Golf Outlook

Stanford's men's golf program enters the spring portion of its season with one goal in mind—to win the national championship to be held at the Honors Course in Chattanooga, Tenn., in June.

Six returning letterwinners along with three promising freshmen will lead Stanford's quest of securing the program's ninth national title. Juniors Sihwan Kim and Steve Ziegler, sophomore David Chung and the return of a healthy Joseph Bramlett give Stanford one of the most talented and deepest lineups in Conrad Ray's six-year tenure as head coach.

Ziegler led the Cardinal in stroke average last year as a sophomore, earning first team All-Pac-10 Conference honors. Kim enjoyed two second place finishes this fall and looks to have returned to the All-America form that he demonstrated as a freshman when he was ranked seventh in the country at the end of the season.

Chung, who won the prestigious North & South Men's Amateur Championship in July, is considered one of the top underclassmen in the country.

Competition for the fifth spot in the lineup will be fierce, with senior Jordan Cox, juniors Graham Brockington and Wilson Bowen along with a trio of talented freshmen - Andre De Decker, Steve Kearney and Andrew Yun - looking to enter the mix.

"This team is definitely one of the deepest teams we have fielded in recent years in terms of overall scoring ability," said Ray, who guided the Cardinal to the 2007 NCAA Championship and a runner-up finish in 2008. "They are confident in their abilities and have all played at a very high level."

Stanford finished no lower than fourth in any of its four fall tournaments and captured the Gifford Intercollegiate championship in early November. The Cardinal also turned in impressive performances against strong fields at the Olympia Fields Fighting Illini Invitational (4th), The Prestige at PGA West (2nd) and at the Isleworth Collegiate Invitational (3rd).

"We were very consistent during the fall and feel we can take even another step up this spring," said Ray. "I am really excited to see how our freshmen develop, as well."

Seniors

Ray knows a healthy Joseph Bramlett might be the key to the Stanford's NCAA championship fortunes.

Bramlett, who at 14 was the youngest ever to qualify for the U.S. Amateur, has been limited to just nine events over the past two seasons due to various injuries. After being sidelined all of last spring and this fall, Bramlett hopes to return to form that he showed as a freshman, when he recorded a 71.5 stroke average and fired a final-round 69 at the NCAA Championships in leading the Cardinal to the national title.

Bramlett's last collegiate tournament came in November of 2008, when he finished sixth at the CordeValle Intercollegiate Championships, his ninth career top-10 finish.

"From every standpoint, Joe plays a big role on this team, obviously," said Ray. "When he is healthy, he is one of the most talented players in the country. We are hoping he can finish his career the same way it began—with a national championship."

Jordan Cox joins Bramlett to round out Stanford's senior class. Cox, who qualified for the 2008 U.S. Open at Torrey Pines, will be a fixture in the lineup if he can demonstrate the consistency in his game that made him one of the top junior players in the country coming out of Serra High School in nearby San Mateo, Calif.

Cox carded a 77.5 stroke average in two tournaments this fall and was limited to just four events last year.

"The talent is there," said Ray. "Consistency will be the key for Jordan. The competition for the fifth spot in the lineup will be outstanding all spring."

Juniors

Stanford features two of the top juniors in the country in Sihwan Kim and Steve Ziegler.

Kim was Stanford's most consistent player during the fall, posting three top-10 finishes in four outings to go along with a team-best 71.3 stroke average. He closed the fall with back-to-back second-place finishes at the Isleworth and Gifford Intercollegiate Championships.

Kim, who earned first team All-America honors as a freshman when he finished the year ranked seventh in the nation, has played in 28 tournaments since arriving on the Farm in the fall of 2007, carding a 72.5 stroke average.

"Sihwan has the full scope of tools," said Ray. "He is so naturally talented and hits the ball so far. I think his mental approach is much better this season, which is good sign of his maturity as a golfer."

Ziegler earned first team All-Pac-10 honors last season after leading the Cardinal in stroke average (72.5) as a sophomore. He enjoyed five top-10 finishes on the year and captured his first collegiate title at the USC/Ashworth Invitational.

A native of Broomfield, Colo., Ziegler enjoyed a sensational summer, winning both the Colorado Golf Association Stroke Play and Match Play championships, becoming just the ninth player to win both events in the same year. He also qualified for the match play portion at the U.S. Amateur.

"Steven might be the difference for us this spring," said Ray. "I think he will be the first to tell you he had an average fall by his standards, but he knows how to win. He's one of our steadiest players, no doubt."

Graham Brockington, who competed in three events during the fall and carded a 75.9 stroke average, will compete for a regular spot in the spring lineup.

"Graham displays the work ethic and desire that we all need to succeed as a team," said Ray. "No one works harder and that will raise the level of everyone around him. He is a big asset."

Sophomores

David Chung made an immediate impact last year as a freshman, earning second team All-Pac-10 honors. His stroke average of 73.8 was the third best on the team behind Ziegler and senior Dodge Kemmer (73.8).

Chung further served notice that he is one of the top young players in the country last summer, when he captured the prestigious North & South Men's Amateur Championships held at Pinehurst No. 2, just outside of his hometown of Fayetteville, NC.

"David has no weaknesses," said Ray. "His win at the North & South did so much for his confidence level."

Wilson Bowen, who is in his second year in the program, redshirted last year a freshman. He saw his first collegiate action this fall at The Prestige at PGA West, where he tied for 78th.

Freshmen

Stanford welcomes a trio of talented freshmen to the Farm this season in Andre De Decker, Steven Kearney and Andrew Yun.

Yun, a native of Chandler, Ariz., was a constant presence in the fall lineup, competing in all four events and registering a 74.0 stroke average, highlighted by a third-place finish at the Gifford Intercollegiate Championships at CordeValle.

A four-time American Junior Golf Association All-American, Yun was ranked as high as fifth in the AJGA rankings that were released last August after a second-place finish at the Porter Cup in July.

"Andrew is a very accomplished, young player who will push some of the veterans," said Ray. "He will be a mainstay in the lineup for years to come."

De Decker was the second ranked junior player in South Africa coming out of high school last year and was a member of the South African Under-16 Junior Team.

Kearney, a native of Carlsbad, Calif., was the top-ranked junior player in the San Diego area and was ranked among the top-30 junior players in the nation last year.

Stanford University at a Glance

On October 1, 1891, the 465 new students who were on hand for opening day ceremonies at Leland Stanford Junior University greeted Leland and Jane Stanford enthusiastically, with a chant they had made up and rehearsed only that morning. Wah-hoo! Wah-hoo! L-S-J-U! Stanford! Its wild and spirited tone symbolized the excitement of this bold adventure. As a pioneer faculty member recalled, "Hope was in every heart, and the presiding spirit of freedom prompted us to dare greatly."

For the Stanford's on that day, the university was the realization of a dream and a fitting tribute to the memory of their only son, who had died of typhoid fever weeks before his sixteenth birthday. Far from the nation's center of culture and unencumbered by tradition or ivy, the new university drew students from all over the country; many from California; some who followed professors hired from other colleges and universities; and some simply seeking adventure in the West. Though there were many difficulties during the first months – housing was inadequate, microscopes and books were late in arriving from the East – the first year foretold of greatness. As Jane Stanford wrote in the summer of 1892, "Even our fondest hopes have been realized."

Ideas of "Practical Education"

Governor and Mrs. Stanford had come from families of modest means and had built their way up through a life of hard work. So it was natural that their first thoughts were to establish an institution where young men and women could "grapple successfully with the practicalities of life." As their thoughts matured, these ideas of "practical education" enlarged to the concept of producing cultured and useful citizens who were well-prepared for professional success.

Nearly 116 years later, the university still enjoys the original 8,180 acres (almost 13 square miles) of grassy fields, eucalyptus groves, and rolling hills that were the Stanford's generous legacy, as well as the Quadrangle of "long corridors with their stately pillars" at the center of campus. It is still true, as the philosopher William James said, during his stint as a visiting professor, that the climate is "so friendly ... that every morning wakes one fresh for new amounts of work."

Current Perspectives

In other ways, the university has changed tremendously on its way to recognition as one of the world's great universities. At the hub of a vital and diverse Bay Area, Stanford is less than hour's drive south of San Francisco and just a few minutes north of the Silicon Valley, an area dotted with computer and high technology firms largely spawned by the university's faculty and graduates. On campus, students and faculty enjoy new libraries, modern laboratories, tremendous sports and recreation facilities, and comfortable residences. Contemporary sculpture, as well as pieces from the Stanford Museum's extensive collection of sculpture by Auguste Rodin, is placed throughout the campus, providing unexpected pleasures at many turns. At the Stanford Medical Center, world-renowned for its research, teaching, and patient care, scientists and physicians are searching for answers to fundamental questions about health and disease. Ninety miles down the coast, at Stanford's Hopkins Marine Station on the Monterey Bay, scientists are working to better understand the mechanisms of evolution, human development, and ecological systems.

The university is organized into seven schools: Earth Sciences, Education, Engineering, the Graduate School of Business, Humanities and Sciences, Law and Medicine. In addition, there are more than 30 interdisciplinary centers, programs, and research laboratories – including the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace; the Institute for International Studies; the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center; and the Stanford Center for the Study of Families, Children and Youth – where faculty from a wide range of fields bring different perspectives to bear on issues and problems. Stanford's Overseas Studies Program offers students in all fields remarkable opportunities for study abroad, with campuses in Australia, Beijing, Berlin, Cape Town, Florence, Kyoto, Madrid, Moscow, Oxford, Paris, and Santiago.

Stanford People

By any measure, Stanford's faculty – which numbers 1,874 – is one of the most distinguished in the nation. As of the June of 2009, the faculty included 16 Nobel Laureates, four Pulitzer Prize winners, 23 MacArthur Fellows, 19 recipients of the National Medal of Science, two National Medal of Technology recipients, 244 members of the National Academy of Arts and Sciences, 136 members of the National Academy of Sciences, 83 National Academy of Engineering members, 46 American Philosophical Society members, 27 members of the National Academy of Education, eight Wolf Foundation Prize winners, six winners of the Koret Foundation Prize and three Presidential Medal of Freedom winners. Yet beyond their array of honors, what truly distinguishes Stanford faculty is their commitment to sharing knowledge with their students. The great majority of professors teach undergraduates both in introductory lecture classes and in small advanced seminars.

Currently, 15,140 students, of which 6,812 are undergraduates, study on campus. A little more than 40 percent come from California, but all 50 states and 8 countries are represented as well. Among undergraduates, approximately 55 percent are African American, Asian American, International, Mexican American, Native American, Native Hawaiian or Other Hispanic in ethnicity. Like the faculty, the Stanford student body is distinguished. Approximately 10 students apply to Stanford for every place in the freshman class with 89% of those admitted finishing in the top 10% of their high school class. Ninety-eight Stanford students have been named Rhodes Scholars, 78 have been selected Marshall Award winners, and 53 have been chosen Truman Scholars. Nearly 90 percent of graduating seniors plan to attend graduate or professional schools. Stanford students also shine in a tremendous array of activities outside the classroom – from student government to music, theater, and journalism. Through the Haas Center for Public Service, students participate in many community service activities, such as tutoring programs for children in nearby East Palo Alto, the Hunger Project, and the Arbor Free Clinic.

In the athletic arena, Stanford students have enjoyed tremendous success as well. Stanford fields teams in 35 Division I varsity sports. Of Stanford's 97 NCAA titles (111 national), 57 have been captured since 1990, by far the most in the nation. Forty-nine Stanford-affiliated athletes competed in the 2008 Olympics in Beijing, collecting a school-record 25 medals (eight gold, 13 silver and four bronze. Intramural and club sports are also popular; over 1,300 students take part in the club sports program, while participation in the intramural program is more than 4,600, with many students active in more than one sport.

Looking Ahead

In her address to the Board of Trustees, in 1904, Jane Stanford said, "... Let us not be afraid to outgrow old thoughts and ways, and dare to think on new lines as to the future of the work under our care."

Her thoughts echo in the words of former Stanford President Gerhard Casper, who has said, "The true university must reinvent itself every day..." At Stanford, these are days of such reconsideration and fresh support for our fundamental tasks – teaching, learning, and research."

Bob Bowsby

The Jaquish & Kenninger
Director of Athletics

One of the most respected athletic administrators in the nation, Bob Bowsby enters his fourth full year as the Jaquish & Kenninger Director of Athletics at Stanford University, a position he was appointed to on April 25, 2006 after spending 15 years at the helm of the University of Iowa's athletic program. In his initial three years in the position, Stanford has continued its well-earned reputation of fielding the most successful and wide-ranging Division I-A athletic programs in the nation.

As Stanford's sixth athletic director, Bowsby succeeds Ted

Leland (1991-2005), Andy Geiger (1979-90), Joe Ruetz (1972-78), Chuck Taylor (1963-71) and Al Masters (1925-63). He directs a department that includes 35 intercollegiate varsity teams – 15 men's, 19 women's and one coed – plus the physical education department, intramurals, club sports, open recreation and the Stanford Golf Course.

Under his administrative guidance, Stanford claimed its unprecedented 15th straight Learfield Sports Director's Cup last spring, emblematic of the top overall program in the country. Ten Stanford teams boasted Top 10 finishes, winning national championships in men's gymnastics and women's rowing.

Stanford's student-athletes were also highly-decorated last year. Foluke Akinradewo (women's volleyball) earned her second straight national player of the year honor while eight student-athletes earned conference player of the year marks. In addition, Erik Shoji (men's volleyball) earned national freshman of the year accolades.

Two Stanford coaches--Thom Glielmi (men's gymnastics) and Yaz Farooq (women's rowing) earned national coach of the year marks.

Throughout his career, Bowsby has emerged as a national leader in intercollegiate and amateur athletics. He was named in February, 2007, to the United States Olympic Committee Board of Directors.

He has previously served as President of the NCAA Division I-A Athletic Directors' Association (2002-03), Chair of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee for two years (2003-05) and a committee member for five years, Chair of the Big Ten Administrator's Council (2002-04) and Chair of the NCAA Management Council.

Bowsby was appointed by President George Bush as a member of the Commission on Opportunities in Athletics in 2002-03. The committee was led by U.S. Secretary of Education Rod Paige.

Bowsby was elected chair of the NCAA Olympic Sports Liaison Committee and represented the NCAA as one of two voting members on the United States Olympic Committee Board of Directors. He served as a member of the NCAA/U.S. Olympic Committee Task Force chaired by Cedric Dempsey and George Steinbrenner.

In addition, Bowsby served as chair of the NCAA Wrestling Committee and has served on NCAA committees on Financial Aid and Amateurism, the Special Committee to Review Amateurism Issues and the Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Athletics.

Bowsby has also served as an Executive Committee member with both the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics and the Division I-A Athletic Directors Association and served as President of the I-A organization for two years.

The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) named

selected him from the four regional award winners as the National Athletics Director of the Year. The award highlights the efforts of the athletic directors for their commitment and positive contributions to campuses and their surrounding communities.

As the chief administrator for Iowa's athletic department from 1991-2006, Bowsby earned a reputation as one of the most admired, energetic and ambitious athletic administrators in the nation. Bowsby guided and supervised the merger of the Hawkeye's women's and men's athletics departments while enabling Iowa to maintain its standing as one of the most visible and successful Division I athletic programs.

Under his leadership, Iowa enjoyed unprecedented success and growth in the area of fund raising and facilities. Bowsby and the UI Development staff put in place $25 million in endowments to help support Hawkeye student-athlete scholarship aid. In addition, he managed the planning and construction of $120 million in facility projects on campus, including an $87 million renovation to Kinnick Stadium.

A native of Waterloo, Iowa, Bowsby became Iowa's 10th Athletic Director in June, 1991, after serving in the same role at the University of Northern Iowa since 1984. Bowsby earned his bachelor's degree from Moorhead State University (Minnesota) in 1975 and his master's degree from the University of Iowa in 1978.

Bob and his wife, Candice, have four children: Lisa, Matt, Rachel and Kyle.

Principles That Guide Us

Department of Athletics, Physical Education, and Recreation

Department of Athletics, Physical Education, and Recreation

MISSION STATEMENT

From its founding in 1891, Stanford University's leaders have believed that physical activity is valuable for its own sake and that vigorous exercise is complementary to the educational purposes of the university. Within this context for human development, it is the mission of Stanford's Department of Athletics, Physical Education and Recreation to offer a wide range of high quality programs which will encourage and facilitate all participants to realize opportunities for championship athletic participation, physical fitness, health and well being.

We Will Teach

- By encouraging our student-athletes to capture all the joy, power and extraordinary personal growth that comes to those who compete and support athletic excellence.
- By hiring and retaining the best coaches and staff members available and arming them with the tools to achieve at the highest level.
- By fostering and nurturing a coaching, physical education and recreation staff that is committed to teaching with integrity & ambition and that performs in a manner which is consistent with the academic priorities of Stanford University.

- By recognizing the need to work as a team while valuing each individual's unique characteristics and abilities.
- By committing ourselves to the personal development and well being of our student-athletes and staff. Those who participate at all levels will learn the benefits of teamwork, discipline, goal setting, physical fitness, healthy lifestyles, character development, self confidence, sportsmanship, and an appreciation for lifelong learning.

We Will Lead

- By being the model of success, of universal opportunity, and of unwavering commitment to the ideal of the scholar-athlete.
- By operating with integrity as we follow the spirit and the letter of each rule. Integrity will be displayed in our policies, performances and programs.
- By continuing our long history of conference and national prominence through a commitment to cutting edge involvement in athletic issues.

We Will Win

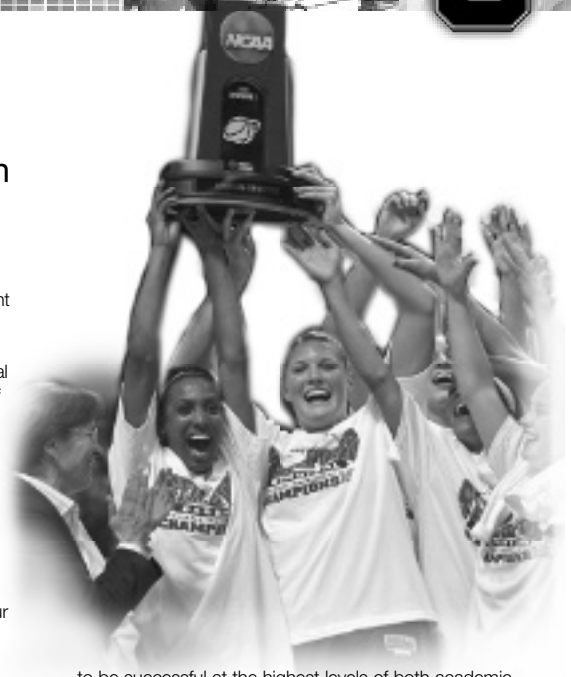

- By maximizing our effort in every competition, on every team and in every setting where skill, determination and hard work combine to achieve singularly successful results.
- By having an uncompromising commitment to Conference and National championships and by providing each student-athlete with the tools necessary to be successful at the highest levels of both academic and athletic performance.

- By creating a commitment to a university-wide wellness culture that will allow Stanford students, faculty and staff to maximize their health and fitness opportunities throughout their lives.

We Will Serve

- By respecting, honoring and responding to the needs of our student-athletes, coaches, colleagues, advocates and members of our larger community.
- By encouraging innovation and creativity. We will harness technology to extend our reach and to interface with our various internal and external constituencies.
- Through fiscal responsibility in all elements of departmental operations.
- By advancing outreach as a fundamental component of the department, we will strive to enhance the overall mission of the University through competitive excellence, effective outreach and an on-going commitment to customer service.
- By utilizing the department resources and physical facilities to serve the campus community, our alumni and our supporters throughout the world.
- By valuing our heritage, and in doing so we commit ourselves to championship caliber athletic achievement and the on-going enhancement of the traditions of Stanford Athletics, including leadership, individual and team achievement & intense pride and loyalty.

Stanford's National Titles

NCAA championships are commonplace at Stanford University, as Cardinal teams have won national titles at an unprecedented rate, including a national-best 80 since 1980 and 57 since 1990. Stanford has won at least one NCAA championship for 33 consecutive years and has won four national titles in a single season nine times.

Nine different Stanford teams have won at least five national titles, including men's tennis (18), women's tennis (16), men's water polo (11), women's swimming and diving (9), men's swimming and diving (8), men's golf (8), women's volleyball (6), synchronized swimming (6) and women's cross country (5). A total of 19 Stanford teams have won at least one national championship.

Stanford teams have won a total of 110 national championships. In NCAA competition, Cardinal teams have won 97 team titles, including 59 men's championships and an NCAA-best 38 women's titles.

Stanford Golf Course

Billy Bell, George C. Thomas and Alistair McKenzie designed and oversaw the building of the Stanford Golf Course in 1929.

The Stanford University Golf Course was designed in 1930 by renowned golf course architects William Bell and George C. Thomas, Jr. Located in the foothills above the Stanford University Campus, the golf course is consistently rated one of the finest courses in the world. In 1998, the golf course was rated 91st in the country by Golf Week Magazine and in 1993 was rated 88th in the world by Golf Magazine.

In the 1920s, Stanford students lobbied for a golf course. The golf team was using the Burlingame Course for practice and was coached by the Burlingame pro Harold Sampson. Luckily, the students found an enthusiast in Almon E. Roth '09, the University Controller, who had become hooked on the game and was a member of the Los Altos Country Club. In February 1929, he persuaded the Stanford University Board of Trustees to provide the land and finance the construction of a golf course at the University. Then he and Al Masters, the manager of the Athletic Department, hired George C. Thomas Jr. and William "Billy" Bell to design and build the course.

Roth had his own ideas as to the layout of the course, and when Bell arrived in March they walked the area. Bell immediately saw the possibility of incorporating San Francisco Creek into the design. Acquiring the land on the other side of the creek, which belonged to the Buck Estate, required a change in the California State Constitution to allow a land swap. Roth flew to Sacramento from the Palo Alto Airport in an open cockpit biplane to lobby for the change.

Thomas designed the course and Bell managed the construction. Bell traveled back and forth to Beverly Hills updating Thomas on his progress and getting further instructions. Thomas was ill and died a couple of years later having never seen the results of his effort.

Construction began in May of 1929, with great care being taken to preserve the oak trees. Ultimately, only 75 had to be removed. At that time, water for the irrigation of the campus came from Searsville Lake. Since a much greater quantity of water would be required for the golf course, Felt Lake was enlarged to a capacity of 278,000,000 gallons. By December the course was ready. "Dick" Templeton, the track coach who first used starting blocks in track meets, was in the first foursome on opening day, January 1, 1930.

The course cost $188,000 to design and build, and enlarging Felt Lake cost $190,000. The club house, which cost $54,000, was designed by the architects Bakewell and Brown, who had designed many buildings on campus, and were noted for designing City Hall in San Francisco. Club member Wells P. Goodenough was the contractor.

One unique feature of the course was Bell's bunker design, which included natural and undefined edges. The 12th hole is one of the most difficult in Northern California, having four trees down the middle of the fairway. The 18th tee is probably the most picturesque because of the spectacular view of San Francisco and almost the entire Bay Area.

Stanford University Golf Course is steeped in tradition. Throughout the years, Stanford has hosted many intercollegiate and non-collegiate events, including the Stanford Invitational, Pac-10 Championships, NCAA Western Regional, Women's NCAA Championships, USGA Junior Amateur Qualifying, U.S. Open Qualifying and a former Senior PGA Tour event, The Gathering at The Farm.

Stanford University Golf Course, which is currently ranked as the sixth best University Course by Golfweek Magazine, has also produced many influential golfers throughout the years. Such notables include former USGA presidents Sandy Tatum and Grant Spaeth, and PGA Tour professionals Tom Watson, Tiger Woods and Notah Begay III.

Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex

Stanford University Athletics has teamed with Robert Trent Jones II Golf Course Architects to create what is arguably the most innovative practice facility in all of golf. The 30-acre practice center is designed to provide Stanford's men's and women's intercollegiate teams a unique training experience at a facility that is unmatched in collegiate golf. Opened in April of 2008, the Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex is crafted on 30 acres of previously undeveloped land adjacent to the Stanford Golf Course. The distinctive quality of the facility is its six green complexes, complete with bunkering, each inspired by a different design style that Stanford's men's and women's intercollegiate teams play on a regular basis, each complete with intrinsic grasses and sand textures.

The Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex offers six green complexes, complete with bunkering, each inspired by a different design style. Created to "train by scenario," the Stanford men's and women's intercollegiate teams have the opportunity to play and practice shots that they will face in tournament competition, as each aspect of the facility is designed to emulate courses played during the year.

The innovatively designed "Road Game Greens" depict aspects of the masters of golf course architecture; Alister MacKenzie, Pete Dye, A.W. Tillinghast, Tom Fazio, Robert Trent Jones Sr. and Robert Trent Jones II, actively showing differences of grass choice, sand variation, green contour, and more. The Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex is "unique and the best of its kind," says Robert Trent Jones Jr., the visionary behind the RTJ II firm. "There is nothing like it in the world."

"The Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex represents a huge step forward for our golf programs and the golf community at Stanford," said head men's golf coach Conrad Ray. "Having a facility that offers different types of design characteristics, grasses, sands, and shot scenarios we can truly "practice to play" which is a underlying principle by which we prepare. The Siebel Complex is unlike any other collegiate facility in the country. It will add to our recruiting efforts as well as the game development of the players that are already on the team. We are very thankful of the support we have been given by the University and supporters as well as for the relationship that has been fostered with RTJII Golf Architects."

Hitting areas and putting greens vary not only in style, but in their surface, as well. Players can get the feel of hitting and putting on bent grass, Bermuda grass and fescue. That philosophy applies to the various practice bunker areas that provide three completely different textures – coarse, desert waste-bunker sand; pure white, fluffy sand; and beige, medium-coarse sand.

Adjacent to the second fairway of the Stanford Golf Course, the Siebel Varsity Golf Training Complex is laid out in an L-shape, with two sections –200 yards wide by 400 yards long – that overlap at the turn. With the greens strategically placed around the perimeter of the property, all six complexes can be used at the same time that other players hit into adjacent landing areas. Also, players can hit to greens from an almost never-ending variety of spots.

With a practice facility like none other in the world, the Stanford men's and women's golf teams will be better prepared to challenge any competitor and continue to seek excellence.
